

Thursday, 14 January, 2010

Salty's on Display at Reef HQ Aquarium

Two very cheeky, toothy grinned Saltwater Crocodiles will now call Reef HQ Aquarium home thanks to Billabong Sanctuary. Former residents of Billabong Sanctuary, the thirty centimetre Saltwater Crocodiles will be displayed in Reef HQ's Mangroves exhibit until they reach sixty centimetres in size.

Reef HQ Aquarium Acting Director, Sascha Thyer said "The team at Reef HQ Aquarium is very excited to be working collaboratively with another leading attraction; Mangroves are such an important habitat to the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park ecosystem and it's wonderful to display these charismatic creatures so guests can truly appreciate these apex predators.

The Saltwater Crocodiles exhibit is now open to the public and is free with general admission.

ENDS

When: Thursday, 14th January at 10.00am (other times available upon request)

Where: Reef HQ Aquarium Complex

Interviews: Sachsa Thyer (Acting Director, Reef HQ Aquarium),
Penny Teale (General Manager, Billabong Sanctuary)

Vision: Saltwater Crocodiles in Reef HQ Aquarium's Mangrove Exhibit

Media Contact: Olivia McKenna, Ph: 07 4750 0800 or E: marketing@reefhq.com.au